Translation

Some Documents need to be Translated into the language of the users who will be coming into contact with them. Document types can be defined to have the Translation Type attribute associated with them.

If a document is defined to have the Translation Type attribute, Translation Type will appear as Metadata when working with that document type. This means when selecting that document type in a wizard, add item, or add event screen, the user will have the ability to select a Translation Type from a list of values defined in the eTMF. This also means if you are Indexing a document and proposing a new study item, you will have the ability to select a Translation Type from a list of values defined in the eTMF. The value selected for Translation Type will appear in the name of the study item or document.
